

Urban Land Institute

San Diego-Tijuana

Share

ULI@LUNCH

01.29.19

11:30 - 1:00PM

Procopio Tower

525 B Street
San Diego, CA

Will San Diego See the End of Parking Requirements

A Game Changing Policy in the Quest to Make San Diego More Affordable & Sustainable

Moderated by:
Justine Nielsen
Partner
Procopio

Alyssa Muto
Deputy Director of Environment &
Mobility Planning
City of San Diego

Maya Rosas
Director of Policy
Circulate SD

Rammy Cortez
Development Partner
Hub & Spoke
Communiites

Communities all over the country are re-examining and eliminating parking requirements. As housing affordability continues to dominate the headlines, the City of San Diego is proposing a new policy that would eliminate parking requirements for new residential development in high-density transit-accessible locations.

With the cost of labor and construction materials at an all-time high, this is a game-changer in our ability to deliver more affordable and attainable housing. More importantly, it eliminates the need to build something that will likely be outdated in the next few years.

Learn more about the national trends:

Toward Zero Parking: Challenging Conventional Wisdom for Multifamily